PROBABLE WITHDRAWAL

Military Experts Claim That it is Initial Step by Bulgaria for Their Withdrawal From Central Powers.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris.—An armistice has been concluded between the allies and Bulgaria on the allies own terms the announcement was made officially today.

Bulgarian representatives agreed to an armistice with the first step: Bulgaria's withdrawal from the alliance with the central powers, a few days less than three years after she entered the war on the side of Germany. It was on October 10 that the Bulgarian manifesto announcing her decision to cast her lot against the entente. She had fifteen months in deciding her course. In the manifesto the Bulgarian government declared her trade interests and economic rights inseparably bound with Turkey, Germany and Austria.

had offered Bulgaria in return for her neutrality the whole of Macedonia including Ueskub, Katsikovo and Odrin. At the same time, the great territorial expansion at the expense of Serbia was said to have been offered as a condition of active military assistance. During the period of the armistice, the entire alliance of the central powers made offers to Bulgaria, and Russia, who for four years had protected Bulgarian interests, sent an ultimatum to Bulgaria in early in October, 1915. Bulgaria refused this ultimatum, and the Bulgarian manifesto said Bulgaria did not believe in the promises of the en-

The Princes of Germany are Shaking Dice for the United States

By HERBERT QUICK

WE MUST buy bonds to the last cent of our ability, because our country is fighting for its very life. Make no mistake, citizens of America, the crisis is just that—we are fighting for our very life.

We must fight this war through. We must fight it through to a peace the basis of which will be written by us and our allies.

Germany must not write a single clause in the Treaty. She must be whipped until she will sign a treaty every word of which will be drawn by the Allies. Germany must not be allowed to dot an i or cross an t.

Why ?

Because Germany has become nothing but a robber empire, a murderer empire, an empire every purpose of which is the enslavement of the rest of the world. Such purposes admit of no compromise. We must conquer or die. If we do not conquer we shall, nevertheless, die—and die slaves.

Germany began with the intention of robbing France of her iron, her coal, her best land and her great factories; of making Belgium with her rich mines, great cities and immense factories a part of Germany; of gaining the Belgian coast, from which she might conquer England, and of combining under her flag the hordes of Mohammedan Turks, and all the Balkan States, so that she might train soldiers in countless millions, build navies to sweep the oceans, and conquer the world.

This war was to be a step toward world conquest.

If we do not fight the war through to complete victory she will still keep on and she will succeed. She will surely succeed!

Russia with her nearly 200,000,000 people lies prostrate at Germany's feet. Germany could now give up the Balkan States, give up Belgium, force Austria to yield up the Italian territories, give up conquered France, yes, she could give up these, and even Alsace-Lorraine, and if allowed a free hand in Russia, she would still have won a victory greater than any of which she ever dreamed at the beginning of the war.

Give her control of Russia and she can, and will, within a few years come back with power to take back Alsace-Lorraine, crush poor Belgium once more and destroy exhausted France, sweep every vestige of resistance from Europe, Asia and Africa, and then what?

Then she will thunder at our doors—from Asia she will invade us on the West, from Europe on the East, and from any possible seized vantage point on any side.

If Germany has control over the terms of peace, we who read this will live to see one of the Kaiser's six sons Emperor of America.

The time to whip Germany is now!

It is now or never!

The Princes of Germany are shaking dice for the United States!

It will take money, money, money, that we may send men, men, men!

Buy Bonds, for so only can the war be won. Unless it is won, everything you possess is lost, and with it the American soul is lost

Do you want your share of the loan allotted? Of course you don't, but it is very liable to be necessary unless there is a prompt response to this loan. Other communities do it and the Janeville Committee may have to. Don't wait for anyone to call on you, but go at once to Liberty Loan Headquarters, No. 5 N. Main street and subscribe to the limit—until it hurts your purse. All applications for bonds must be accompanied by 10% of the amount applied for.

WORK OR FIGHT.

This war stage has reached the work or fight epoch. It means that right here in Rock county we are going to find a discriminated classification of men who have been in lines of business, thus far thought immune from the order, are to be called on to show reason why they should not enter upon some real, genuine, productive line of industry and not remain in a "non-essential" line of labor from now on.

It is a categorization of social conditions that will be hard to contemplate, but must become a fact within a short period. No matter if a few months ago this war was three thousand miles away from us, today we are face to face with it in prices for food supplies, for clothing, for fuel and all the essentials in life, and at the same time our man power is being drafted into the federal service as fast as possible.

It is going to be a work or fight proposition from now on. The Kruger boys, who shot down the deputies who went to arrest them as slackers, are one type of citizens we must look after, and the next is the man who will not buy a Liberty bond.

This war is to be won in Europe, but why should any community permit a school which teaches the language of the Hun, to continue in operation, is more than the average American can understand. Here we are sending our boys across the water to fight this foe of foes, and yet permit right here at home schools in which the German language and the German doctrine may be taught.

The Janesville schools have taken out this course, but at other places in the county it is permitted. Why not stop it everywhere and not enter to the tongue of a barbarian whose sole desire is slaughter and rapine, and whose hatreds are shooting down our sons and brothers and friends across the water?

We may talk "work or fight," but let it be consistent and eliminate these cesspools of educational evasion of the law first, for once and all time. The boys who answer the call to the colors would fight better if they knew that back here at home we stood behind them. We must also stop the GERMAN LANGUAGE IN OUR SCHOOLS. Liberty and union, one and inseparable.

LET CETERA.

In this rush to over-subscribe the Fourth Liberty Loan, the average citizen must not forget that the Janesville Center is making a bid for their favor and offering, just like the Liberty bonds, dollar for dollar interest, and all they want is contributions of materials they can sell.

We are all interested in the Liberty Loan; everyone means to subscribe. The slackers and the "sickers" may escape, but the red-blooded Americans will step forward and make their subscriptions and go out and see that others do likewise.

The war is being fought across the water. Our Rock county boys are dropping before the bullets of the Hun, dead or seriously wounded, or even slightly injured. Read their letters in the columns of the Gazette and understand what they are doing. Over here we can not fight the "Huns" abroad, we may be called upon to fight them at home, but we can contribute to the war by making the boys able to continue their fight.

Meanwhile we can care for those left behind and look to the comfort and convenience of the women who visit the city. This is done by the Janesville Center and manufacturers employing women help, stores looking to women to become customers can not underestimate this important function of civil life. The ladies who are in charge of this work must depend upon the general public for their financial aid. They are doing it by holding a rummage sale. Not really a sale of articles that are of no value, but a sale that—if supported by the merchants—will be a clearing shop for surplus articles, and something unique in the line of sales.

Meanwhile we must support the Liberty Loan for the boys across the water and at the same time look to the "Liberty Loan" at home so that our Janesville center can survive another year and continue the work it has begun. There is a motto so true that it must be impressed upon every mind—"The Lord Will Provide."

THE HARVEST SEASON.

An ancient custom makes harvest a festive occasion. Many peoples of the Old World used to have celebrations when the crops were safely garnered. They made offerings to heathen gods, and had music, dancing, and games.

In these matter of fact days we have not so much imagination. About the only harvest festival left in the county is the show, in theory at least this is an economic and community enterprise, rather than an expression of popular joy.

Now after all this his season's work approaches completion. There used to be a dance, the one called "The Old Partner." Well may he kick up his heels. These are times of trial when it is hard to feel the festive spirit. Yet we may have many things to be thankful for, among them a good harvest. In a small way all our people here in Janesville who have worked so faithfully over these golden days, have reason to feel something of this good cheer.

PROPAGANDA.

Even as the predatory hand of Germany was not hard to recognize in the Austrian proposals, so the accompanying rumors showed a similar origin. One of these was that the proposals were backed by international financiers, whose identity was not disclosed. This is another way of causing division here by insinuating disloyalty. Germany's friends, the socialists, are not so ready to cry "Wall Street's war."

It is entirely probable and even certain that German bankers want peace. Even supposing, as Andre Cheradame assumes, that Germany is gorged with loot from Belgium and elsewhere, this is no compensation for the destruction of her industries and of her foreign trade. The banks in Germany stand behind all industrial enterprises to a degree unknown elsewhere, and, indeed, largely control through their financial operations and actual stock ownership.

There is no reason to doubt that Germany's financiers at the beginning of the war shared the general certainty that it would be short, successful and enormously profitable. They had the German theory that they were entitled to take anything which was attractive, like the ore beds of France and the coal fields of Belgium, irrespective of these being the property of others. When Germany started to repeat the "Don Comandments" there was one of them for which, as we know now, she never had any use. In fact, her materialist teaching said emphatically that her people should covet their neighbor's goods.

But German financiers now realize the disastrous end is in sight, and it may well be believed they are making frantic efforts to save what they can out of the wreck. The potentialities of Russia are boundless and the terms of the Brest-Litovsk treaty are notations. Given such monopoly, Germany could well afford to make concessions, especially as they would only represent the surrender of stolen goods. There are still some among us who fail to recognize the absolute and unimpaired character of German war and German trade. There is no pledge which would be observed for a moment if it were to Germany's interest to break it.

But we may well be grateful that our financiers are loyal to a man, and that they could not be suspected for a moment of participation in the German and nefarious plan. There is no middle ground and German propaganda, and President Wilson has shown that the way to handle it is to hit it the instant it raises its head.

ALLEN P. LOVEJOY.

Notice of the untimely death of Allen P. Lovejoy comes as a sad surprise to the people of the city where he was born and where his life has developed. The tragedies of life impress the great truth that death is a respecter of persons and so the death of Mr. Lovejoy, in the midst of a busy, active life, is a mystery which can only be explained by the impartial visits of the grim messenger.

It is easy to account for death where the victim has traveled the highway for many years, for the ending of life is as natural as the beginning, and the allotted time marks a familiar milestone on the border line of borrowed time. Or when our friends pass on from middle life, because not able to stand the strain of feebleness and suffering the expected has happened. But Mr. Lovejoy was, neither an aged pilgrim nor an invalid, and so the reason why the death angel called him away is an unsolved mystery.

Allen P. Lovejoy had won for himself an enviable place in the hearts of the people by an unselfish life. When death found him he was devoting every energy to the great philanthropic and patriotic work of managing the Liberty Loan campaign for the city. His passing creates a vacancy which will be difficult to fill, for he occupied a large place in the community. The city will miss him, for he combined with public spirit the ability to lead and accomplish. The memory of his brief and useful life will linger as a benediction and will serve as an inspiration in closing up the ranks for more active service. A good man has gone, but the work remains.

It takes the man who "knows something about everything" to explain these wondrous crops this year. He may not be able to explain to his wife why he borrowed a dollar from the family purse because he was broke, to buy moving picture show tickets, spent five cents, and then had to dig up two dollars he received from the sale of onions to make up the "ninety-nine cents" for three tickets, but he can tell the public why the crop this year is better than ever and why prices should drop on certain commodities, just the same as Herbie Hoover tells us what to eat and what not to.

These pre-election days are quiet ones and all because we must all subscribe for the Liberty bonds, and subscribe liberally. Don't wait to be approached for a contribution; just step forward like a man and make your subscriptions. Ever dollar counts.

There is not a line of industry that has not been invaded by women, and the only question now asked is what are the men going to do when they come back from war? If the time, when Johnny Comes Marching Home, strikes up, where will they find employment?

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

—IRVY K. MOULTON—

A SHORT STORY. Centuries ago they wallowed in the mud. Old Ptila, faithful friend, when he reached the old Marine river and they sent him on the run. But old Al let out no bellow. Nor a single craven whine. Nor did he exhibit yellow. When they charged him to the Rhine. For he was a fightin' fellow. Not an idiotic shine.

We have knocked him well and often. This old scourge of bygone years; But he wasn't any coward. And he was immune to fears. He was unlike the cowardly holder Of the plate flag unfurled, Whose two feet are growing colder As his force is backward hurled. Whiner, belyacher, shirker of the world. Chaplain short-sport of the world.

WEST CENTER

West Center, Sept. 27.—A number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Harkness Tuesday evening to remind them that it was their fifteenth wedding anniversary, and also Mr. Harkness' birthday. It was a complete surprise to both. The evening was spent in a jolly social manner. About twelve o'clock supper was served from well filled baskets, the men furnishing the fee. Mr. and Mrs. Harkness many returns of the day.

The following are putting up silos on their farms: Jas. Pepper, Wm. Harkness, L. Berryman, Mrs. Harkness, Julius Willing, Sr., and Julius Willing, Jr.

W. J. Howell returned from Chicago, Wednesday evening, where he has taken a course of hog raisers who have raised on his farm.

Herman Selck has sold his 30 acre farm in the town of Center which is now occupied by Roy Gooch, to Mr. Selck. The consideration being $200 per acre.

Chas. Winkelman and wife spent Sunday, Sept. 15, with friends in Orfordville.

Roy Gooch has purchased 20 acres from Mrs. Charles Teneyck and will move there next spring.

O. A. Brown has sold his farm and expects to move to Janesville.

John A. Bell has rented his farm. Born to Mr. and Mrs. Claude Harrison, a son, Saturday, Sept. 21.

MANY TEACHERS IN ATTENDANCE AT RALLY

ROCK COUNTY TEACHERS ATTEND EDUCATIONAL RALLY HELD AT THE HIGH SCHOOL ON SATURDAY.

PROF. HOLT SPOKE

Edgerton Teacher Gave Splendid Address on School Program During the World War.

Inspiring messages from noted educators of the state were given to Rock County teachers on Saturday at an all day meeting held at the local high school.

It was a patriotic session, intended especially to help the teachers in getting the idea of loyalty to their government into their pupils, by giving them all the information possible which should help them in their work.

Bulletins to be used in the schools, government manuals, societies for training in citizenship, and war material of all kinds were explained to the teachers and their use advocated in the next year's work. About one hundred teachers of the one room district schools of the county, out of a possible 140 were present. Besides many teachers of the city schools.

Supt. P. O. Holt of Edgerton presided at the meeting and struck the keynote of the meeting in a splendid address on the changes in our School Program due to the war.

He dwelt particularly on the efficiency of the German system of education which he said was like "a black hand society," which had its grip on every child in the country and through its long term of training inculcated the thoughts of every citizen in the country. The school masters of the country were in control of every boy's destiny because they reported everything to the state.

He thought that the atrocities committed by the German soldiers were explained by the fact that it was impressed upon every one of them from childhood that everything done by them for their fatherland, their Kaiser, was done for God, and so was right.

He emphasized the thought that something else should be taught in the schools at this time besides the usual democratic schools in a democratic country, and that emergency instruction on war topics should be part of the regular work.

The map of the world should be made the basis of getting food to the peoples of the earth, and with the map of Europe before the eyes of the pupils, the study of history and geography could be made very interesting and practical.

A practical talk on "Using War Material for Language Exercises" was given by Miss Ella Jacobson of the county training school. She gave a list of government bulletins available for the purpose, showed how they could be used, and presented a large list of available material which could be used in this line of work. A list of pamphlets issued by the Bureau of Public Information in Washington was read, and she suggested that bulletins from the agricultural department be made a basis of compositions for the children on food conservation.

A summary of books and poems on the war was read, and a drama "Spirit of Wisconsin" which was suitable for presentation in schools, was read.

Miss Agnes Teneck of Moline, Ill., who has been the guest for the last two weeks of Miss S. A. Jeffers, of 68 S. Jackson street, has gone to Ripon, Wis., for a visit. Miss Teneck has been a visitor in the "Garden of Eden" for the past fifteen years. She had wonderful experiences in that country, before and after the war.

Miss Teneck is a native of the state, and she deplored the large number of people in Wisconsin who could not speak or write the English language. Many communities are entirely of Polish, Norwegian, Swiss or other nationality besides the large number of people of many different German descent who are known to be disloyal, and he felt that a betterment of conditions must come through the education of the children.

He felt that there should be a great mobilization of teachers of the state, whose job it should be, to so emphasize these war problems, that their high purposes of the war, that the world race might be disloyal, and he felt that a betterment of conditions must come through the education of the children.

"The Background of our Democracy" was the topic of an address by C. D. Ditzel, of the county training school. He said that many people in this state, especially among the foreigners were indifferent, disloyal or thought that it was a gigantic blunder. It was the duty of the teacher to make people understand the meaning of this war, it was their duty to get the spirit of loyalty and democracy to the folks of their district.

He narrated the experiences of a group of speakers in Green county, who had gone into every school house in the county to hold meetings. They talked nothing but war, and its causes until every person in their county knew what it was all about.

He counted the experiences of an accident, but a great big event in the progress of things and one which marked the elevation of the masses. One nation after another, through the course of the campaign, showed that the world was moving forward with never a backward step.

Miss Ada Lewis sang a "Boat Song" and a Scotch song. Several school pupils under the direction of Miss Marie Dobson gave several selections.

JANESVILLE PEOPLE EAGER TO BUY BONDS

LOCAL RESIDENTS ARE THROUGH LIBERTY LOAN HEADQUARTERS TO PURCHASE BONDS—BOY SCOUTS ACTIVE.

DRIVE OPENS OCT. 8TH

Intensive Campaign for Sale of Bonds Will Open in City Next Monday—Expect to Finish in Two Days.

Janesville residents fully realizing their duty to the boys in the trenches, are waiting for solicitors to call for their Liberty loan subscriptions, but are flocking to the headquarters at 8 North Main street and purchasing their bonds.

Several machine gun ribbons are in evidence throughout the city. The ribbons are given to each person who purchases five hundred dollars worth of bonds.

A. E. Matheson, publicity chairman for Rock county, in discussing the campaign, this morning, said:

"All the work connected with our fourth Liberty loan, as with numerous other war enterprises, is donated, and those who give time and strength are volunteers in the sense that they are donating their services. The large force of workers is made up of volunteers. Let us who are to purchase bonds, be sure that we are not only subscribers, but also volunteers."

Charles Caldwell, of 45 North Main street, in Janesville, and voluntarily call for a subscription blank. He our applications for as large amounts as we can buy, and deposit ten per cent.

It is well to do this early because every subscriber gets a button, and, in wearing the button, he becomes a booster for the fourth Liberty loan. The button is evidence that he has already subscribed and is recommending it by his own act.

"Other cities are planning to carry through the campaign in a single day or two. If we in Janesville and other parts of Rock county carry this matter upon our hearts and volunteer as workers and leaders, we can have the intensive campaign in Rock county, to be commenced on October 8th, cannot be concluded on the same day, or by the 9th at the latest."

It is urgently requested by the county committee that all applications for bonds be made at the offices of the committee instead of at the headquarters. All applications made in this way, it enables the

Heart and Home Problems

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been going with a young man for some time and for the last few times that he has been in my presence he would just sing or whistle and did not talk very much. Do you think that he doesn't enjoy my company and that he would like to break even from this without hurting his feelings? When we go out with other girls and boys he whistles and hums and sings. He has told me that he loved me very much, but we are not engaged. Should I let him kiss me good-night or refuse? I love him and I do not want to give him up. Will you tell me what to do?

WAITING.
I should judge that the boy is young and inexperienced. He is self-centered and wants to entertain without exerting himself to be pleasant. Don't be afraid of his moods. Most girls enter to suitness and are fearful lest they do or say something to offend him.

Do not kiss him good-night. If he enjoys your personality instead of your kisses there is little danger that you will have to give him up.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a friend in the army of whom I thought a good deal, but I have found that my love is not the true love and that I cannot marry him. When he left, he gave me a watch as a friend's gift. Shall I write and tell him I no longer care for him and return his watch, or shall I keep him believing that I still love him. I am only eighteen years old. My father thinks a lot of this boy. Mother is kind.

Think of the boy as a dear friend and write to him as such. If you can, he sneers in what you say, however, do not return the watch until he comes back. After the war is over, he detects a change in your attitude and questions you about it. Tell the truth in as kind a way as you can. Of course you are too young to be seriously in love.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: "Though only 15 years old, I think I am in love. It is not 'puppy love' either. I am a blonde and very good-looking. She looks at me and seems to attempt to speak, but never does. I love her dearly but have not met her yet. Would you call it 'fresh' if I asked her to a party to be held soon?"

PATIENT SQUIFFMORE.
It would be all right to invite her to the party since you are schoolmates. You are too young to be really in love. Your opinion of people may change considerably in the next few years.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: What can I do to get rid of round shoulders and a hollow back? I am also very thin.

Round shoulders are nearly always the result of careless habits in position. By thought you can correct this. Every soldier is a walking evidence of this truth. Enter a gymnasium if you are able financially, and take a course of exercises. For a few cents you can buy the manual which has worked such wonders in the carriage of the men in the army. With this you can practice at home if you prefer. Along with exercise you must breathe deeply, eat the right food and sleep the necessary number of hours.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of sixteen and rather good-looking. Should I go out with boys?

(1) How can I make boys notice me more?
(2) Will it be all right for me to write to the Y. M. C. A. for a soldier's address? Would a soldier think me forward if I should write him first?

BLUE EYES.
(1) You are too young to go out with boys.
(2) It is not an asset to be the type of girl who is so widely noticed by boys. Be modest and content yourself with two or three good friends. Always pay strict attention to your own business when on the street and do not notice whether or not boys are looking at you.

(3) Yes you can get an address from the Y. M. C. A., but you are too young to write to soldiers unless they are already your friends. A boy who receives a letter from you probably would consider you forward. Do not attempt to correspond with a soldier.

THE STRUGGLE

THE CLUB "BRIDGE."
Special invitations to attend the "bridge dance" of the Arcadia club were sent to the Perrols and the Blakes. The Arcadians were sharply divided in membership between the "city crowd," composed of those who had come from the city only recently and wanted to rule the club; and the "country bunch," who had been old residents in Arcadia before the city discovered it, and felt that the club should be theirs. Each faction—the rivalry between them was sharp—wanted to ally the two new families on their side.

Edith dreaded the party which John had made up his mind to attend with her. To him it was the agreeable disclosure of a neighborly dispute. To her it was an enforced attendance on a gathering for which she had neither heart nor reason. The discovery that living in the country cost as much if not more than in the city, the constant worry of meeting the calls for money, more money; her break with Lillian; Lillian's unfair retaliation through John, but above all her lack of fresh new clothing fit to pass that semi-sentimental of women's eyes—all these depressed Edith as only an aggregation of small worries can.

Her protests to John that she had no frock fit for the occasion elicited only his repetition that Edith should dress in the simple dresses as the girls for this affair.

"That blue thing with the gilt stuff on it and the whatever it is at the back will be just right, Edie," he assured her. Edith was going to wear a plain grey she told her mother.

Again Edith flinched, but did not care to reveal to her husband the resentment she felt toward Lillian. She would be sure to think her ungrateful to the woman who had shown such friendly interest in the past. Men always think women are unjust to other women—especially if they like the "other women." John was beginning to like Lillian. He called her "dear" and "sweet" and "my little head." Edith knew exactly how to make men think well of her.

So Edith once more silently sacrificed her own wishes to the general harmony, hoping for the sake of Lillian that Lillian had told the truth about the simplicity that would grace the club affair. The Blakes called for the Perrols on the night of the bridge dance. The women pretended something of cordiality when the men supposed existed between them. But Blake's eyes, sharper than Perrol's—he knew women better—disclosed a degree of pretense under Edith's cheerfulness. He liked both the Perrols in a real, impersonal fashion, the genuine friendliness of a man whose heart is kind.

He admired Edith's refinement and quiet humor. He adored her children and appreciated her training of them. In his heart he knew Edith was a woman of finer character than his wife. He loved Lillian, but he was not blind to her weaknesses and love of ruling. It troubled him that Edith, so soon after moving to the home in the country, should seem depressed about something, like let John Perrol walk on ahead with Lillian.

"Tell me, Edie, how's the country working out with you?" he asked kindly. "The truth, now—don't try to save my feelings by saying everything's lovely if it isn't. Something's on your mind," said Edith slowly. "I think we could make a go of it if only I were a wee bit encouraged in my home baking and preserving industry. I want to make a little money—that way, but—oh, I lack the applause of the multitude, both abroad and at home." She laughed uneasily.

"Don't John like you?"
"—No, he doesn't."

"—No, he doesn't?" Blake glanced sharply at her. "Has Lillian put the kibosh on it?"

"Well—" Edith couldn't seem to go on.
"You needn't say it, Edie," he pleaded. "I sell the whole layout. Lillian and you have had a spat or something and Lillian's set John against your plan. I suppose you wouldn't let her boss you? I know Lillian. I'll talk to her about this. She has no husband and wife."

Edith seized his arm. "Oh, Al! Promise you won't!"
"Edie, shake his head. 'Sorry, Edie, but this is between Lillian and me. I mustn't interfere. Nor must I interfere with you—I'll see to that!'" (To be continued.)

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

The most suitable way to announce an engagement is either through personal notes on a luncheon or dinner party, or by word of mouth to a number of women friends in a group, simply tip you hat and keep it removed until each friend has been recognized. Anxious about the number of the number of the company your brother is stationed with, write to the commanding officer of the camp for information and give him your address.

case at least) no other garment has so brief a tenure of newness. (Those Shabby Shoes of Our Childhood.)

Perhaps it is also because, as a child, my shoes were almost always shabby; for when there are several pairs of small feet to keep decently covered, and means are not unlimited, there must be a limit to the number of shoes per year each pair of feet can have. And, alas, I was, as I often heard my mother say, "terribly hard on shoes." The shoes that should have looked well for three months were shabby in three weeks, and until the time of renewing, the effect of my best frock and prettiest hair ribbon was inevitably marred by the stubbed and scratched shoes which I inconspicuously terminated. I think I conceived a hunger in those days for pretty shoes that I shall be slaking when I am a very old lady (if that, by any chance, ever happens).

Shoes. Are Son Wonderful Nowadays? Then again, shoes are such a wonderful thing nowadays. Don't you remember the days when for the average person shoes were either tan or black—usually the latter? And today—well if you are reading your paper on the trolley, glance up and see how many of the feminine shoes ranged opposite you are plain black like the shoes of yesterday. I doubt if there is a woman who reads this hue and she has no shoes of bronze or soft grey or brown or any of these delicate confections in the lines of shoes that are now so fascinating. She has at least a pair of white shoes. And I can remember when the only white shoes were kid slippers and when most people had those only to be married in.

Romance in the Shoe Shop The last time I was fitted to a pair of high shoes I encountered, in my search for just the right pair, a wonderful old gentleman of a shoe clerk. I asked something about the wearing quality of the shoe and he straightened up and said, "Madame, I have been with this firm forty years and I know there is nothing but the best stuff in our shoes. You must know a great deal about shoes," I said.

A shine of genuine tenderness came into his face. "A fine shoe is as beautiful to me as a yacht or a beautiful woman is to some men." New wasn't that a touch of drama to find in a shoe shop?

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

That Dogged Asthma

This is a letter from a New York bank cashier, yet it seems genuine enough:

"One summer we looked up our apartment and went to the country to spend several days. Within a few days my wife developed acute asthma, a condition that necessitated bringing her back home to our doctor. She soon recovered and the doctor could see no reason why she should give up our outing. So we returned to the country place. In a few days she was again taken so severely that we had to assist her to her room and keep a fan going to give her air. Again we carried her home and this time she was in bed a month. Later when she was able we went to a summer resort. All this time no one even thought of dogs as having anything to do with the trouble. Some months later we built our own home near the ocean and my wife continued to thrive, though each occasion her asthma would recur. I had heard anything to do with the relatives, but I was not sure of my ground. I occurred after a dear friend visited her and brought along her dog. We now have a dog and my wife is perfectly well again. I was kept that my wife again began to have difficulty breathing. As she has been in bed a month, I was not sure of my ground. I had heard anything to do with the relatives, but I was not sure of my ground. I occurred after a dear friend visited her and brought along her dog. We now have a dog and my wife is perfectly well again. I was kept that my wife again began to have difficulty breathing. As she has been in bed a month, I was not sure of my ground. PETEY DINK—PETEY EVIDENTLY HAD SOMETHING ON HIS MIND BESIDES HIS HAT.

BRIDE of BATTLE

A Romance of the American Army Fighting on the Battle-Fields of France.

By VICTOR ROUSSEAU

Copyright, 1918, by Victor Rousseau.

"The whole of that foolish business, Major. The man was once an officer of the Seventh. He's dead and his crimes have died with him. We want to forget that such a thing could have happened, and the only way is to leave him to God's judgment and to cast out all bitterness from our hearts. You quoted Scripture to me—well, I gave you the answer from the same book. Let death bring oblivion to the man's memory. He's left us the child. Start here. Start fresh. I have the right to the kid, but what you have told me makes me feel strongly that there's a Providence in this affair, and I'll tend her to you—mark that word, Major!—on that condition or none."

Major Howard pulled at his mustache indignation. "You don't really mean it, Wallace?" he asked.

"I do. If you want me to let you take her till the war's over—"

"It means forgetting that black-guard."

"It means forgetting him and letting the Judge judge."

"It goes against every instinct. I'd bring her up away from the regimental life. Besides, there are the others."

"Who else knows?"

"Well, of course, nobody else knows who the dead man was. The colonel will have to know. But he needn't know we've adopted the child. He's going South after the war. However, I'm afraid Kellerman knows. He recognized what was left of the face, or suspected somehow. I could tell from his manner."

"I don't see any overwhelming difficulty in that. You can trust Kellerman."

The major nodded, and it occurred to Wallace that he would rather trust any of the officers than Kellerman. He had conceived a prejudice against him which he could not have explained.

The major, who had been pulling at his mustache and thinking deeply, came to his decision.

"Well, I'll take her on those terms, Wallace," he said. "The fellow was a bad lot, but, as you say, there may be no reason why this little animal should suffer for his sins. The mother was decent, and there may be something in that idea of a vicarious restitution. I'll agree, Wallace, if you'll let me take over the charge of her till the war's ended. We'll enter her on the mess book and settle a fictitious parentage on her afterward, and may she never know her father's history. By the time she's old enough to understand a mascot's duties, flirt with the lieutenants, and plead for the drinks, maybe we'll have forgotten it ourselves. Good-night, my boy. Take care of your wound. I'll send in that milk and biscuit and a couple of cakes of naphtha soap, and a porcelain tub with silver trimmings, for you to make a start on her in the morning."

He glanced at the sleeping child, took Mark's hand and went quickly out of the tent. Under the sky he stood still for a few moments.

"The d—d scoundrel!" he muttered.

At that instant his alert ear heard what the sentry, posted some distance away, had failed to catch—the rustling of some moving figure in the dense jungle grass at the edge of the camp.

The major remained perfectly motionless, except for his right hand, which was swiftly withdrawing his revolver from its case. Suddenly he was transformed into action. He leaped between the two last tents of the line, to see a man confront him for an instant. In the light of the quarter-moon the major could not distinguish how the intruder was dressed. It was evident, however, that he had been prowling outside the tent which held Wallace and the child.

"Halt!" shouted the major and the sentry together, and as the man dropped into the grass, the rifle and revolver rang out simultaneously.

The sentry, shouting to the guard, came running up. The major and he searched the spot, but they found nobody.

"One of those d—d Cuban sneak-thieves!" muttered Major Howard as he replaced his revolver in its case. And he hurried away to look after his men.

CHAPTER III.

Several years later Captain Mark Wallace descended from a street car and walked up the grounds of a very select young ladies' boarding school in Westchester county, New York, kept by two maiden ladies. Entering the colonial portico, the captain rang the bell and asked to see Miss Howard.

Five minutes afterward, having satisfied the lady principal that he stood in the avuncular relation to her charge, and was a man of blameless life, he met Eleanor in the reception room.

It was some years since he had seen her. The grimy little waif of the Santiago battlefield had shot up into a slim, long-legged schoolgirl, with brown hair tied back with a ribbon, and a face that already showed the promise of beauty.

The girl hurried forward as if expecting an embrace, realized Mark's intention, and checked herself quickly and held out both hands.

"Dear Uncle Mark!" she exclaimed. "I've been looking forward to you ever since I got your letter telling me that you were coming East."

"Well, it's nice to be appreciated like that," said Mark, laughing.

"I couldn't quite persuade myself that it was true, and that I should really see you at last. And you're not in the least like your photograph."

"Homelier, Eleanor?"

"No, but different. Older—very much older. You must be awfully old—quite thirty, I should say."

"Nearly," admitted Mark, wondering whether the long years in the West, with the sweltering heat and arduous service, had really aged him prematurely. Mark had had no influence to secure him anything better than a border post. He often wondered why he had not gone into civil life, like so many of his class, and amassed a competency in the first booming years of the twentieth century.

Something in the blood, perhaps, had held him to the army life, which he loved so much in principle and hated so much in practice. He was not far short of thirty; he had nothing but his meager pay; no ties but a married sister in Chicago and the girl in the boarding school, who filled so great a part of his thoughts, so disproportionate a share.

For until that day he had only seen her once since he picked her up in the jungle, and she had been too young to retain the memory of the meeting in Major Howard's home.

"I expected a young man, but I'm just as pleased to see you," said Eleanor. "I don't like very young men."

Mark received her amends with amusement, and they sat down side by side upon the sofa, and were soon deep in conversation. Mark learned all about her school and her friends. She was very happy there and would regret not going back at the end of the holidays. However, Major and Mrs. Howard had only placed her there for a few months while they went on a visit to the West.

"I always felt that you are really my guardian, even if you did give me up to Major Howard," said Eleanor.

"But I have only left you," said Mark. "I couldn't very well take care of you when I was sent to Texas. And it has always been understood that you belong to me—I mean, that I am your guardian, Eleanor."

"I know," she said. "And you write me such splendid letters, with such good advice in them."

"Which you don't follow."

"Indeed I do," said the girl, eagerly. "Only sometimes it is just a little out of date, Uncle Mark."

"In what particular?" inquired Mark, beginning to feel a little like a prig in the presence of this self-possessed young person. It is so easy to assume the task of adviser from a distance, but difficult to retain the role face to face.

"Well, when you wrote me last year to remember not to be pert and forward, like modern children, Uncle Mark. Pertness comes at seven or eight. One isn't pert at twelve—at least, not in the way you meant. They call it ill-bred, then."

"I suppose I didn't realize how big you were getting," said Mark penitently. "But you can't think how glad I am to see you, anyway."

"It's a shame sticking you for years out in that horrible desert," said the girl. "I wish, Uncle Mark, you hadn't stayed in the army after the war."

"Why, my dear?"

"Because then you could have gone into business in New York, like Captain Murray and Captain Crawford."

"I've been thinking about as much myself, Eleanor. But I guess the army got hold of me."

"But they haven't treated you right, Uncle Mark. They haven't promoted you for years, and they have jumped all sorts of officers over your head. Major Howard was saying so only before he left for Alaska. But, of course, he's out of favor, and he wouldn't have any influence, anyway. It's years since he was in the army."

"I suppose I'm a back number, my dear. Some of us have to be. Perhaps I'll get my chance. I'm not thirty yet, you know, and thirty isn't considered awfully old in the army. At least, it isn't the retiring age."

"Don't be so absurd, Uncle Mark! You don't look an old man at all. It was just that your photograph was taken so long ago, and I didn't reflect that you must have changed."

"And if ever another war comes I'm sure my experience will count for a lot. And I'll probably have command over Captain Murray and Captain Crawford if ever the National Guard is called on for serious work. And then you'll have your function as our mascot, you know."

He was surprised at the girl's sudden responsiveness to his words. She grew very serious.

"I've often thought about that, Uncle Mark," she answered.

"But, of course, it may never happen."

"I suppose not. But if ever it does I mean to try to be what you meant me to be when you made that condition to the major. How I wish—how I wish—"

"Yes, my dear?"

Didn't Care What Happened

"I became a physical wreck from stomach trouble and was a fit subject only for the operating table or graveyard. Being discouraged, I gave way to drink, which made things worse. I got so I didn't care what happened, and wanted to die. May's Wonderful Remedy has cured me of everything. Am now in fine condition and feel 25 years younger." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. J. P. Baker, Druggist.
